History of our Park!

Castroville Regional Park, located in the southwest part of Castroville, consists of 126 wooded acres on the Medina River.

It was originally part of the "McMullen Grant, a parcel of land granted by the Governor of Spain in 1766 to the Indians of Mission San Jose and by them conveyed to Jon McMullen."

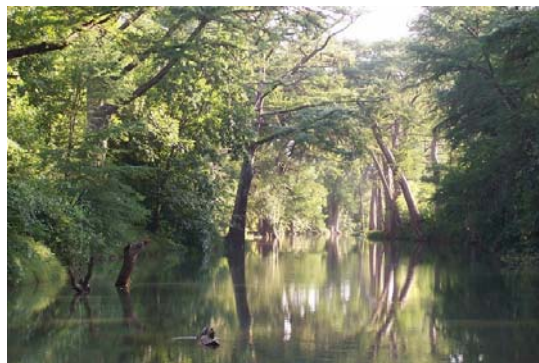

It was later deeded to Henri Castro and the Society of the Colonization of Texas. In the late 1800s the land came into the possession of the Ihnken Family, where it remained through the 1940s.

It was purchased by Mr. Joe Hoog in 1950. In 1968 he sold the land to the City of Castroville at a fraction of its worth with the stipulation that it be turned into a park for everyone to enjoy.

A grant from the Government, an allocation of city funds, plus the support of the Castroville Chamber of Commerce, made Mr. Hoog's dream a reality. The Park was dedicated and opened in 1974.

In 1997 it became home to the "Jardin des Racines" or "Garden of Roots," established as a gesture of friendship by the people of Alsace, France.

This unique gift, surrounded by a walking trail, has enhanced the natural beauty of our tranquil park, as well as added even more meaning to its historical significance.
